In vitro fertilization (IVF) treatment is a complex process that can involve multiple medical teams and points of contact, and it is a significant financial investment. The cost for treatment includes numerous medications, appointments, daily tests, and procedures. Predictably, IVF is the theme of endless books, websites, blog posts, and articles. Based on her personal experiences with IVF, author Monica Bivas created this journal to help you organize the process, handle stress better, and bring focus and clarity to your personal IVF journey. She created The IVF Planner both as an information guide and for you to write your own story. She touches on everything from the basics of the process to financing to a support network and more. Bivas communicates that the IVF journey, no matter the end result—negative, positive, or even cancelled cycles—takes strength, takes courage, and teaches you to be disciplined. Though expensive and challenging, it's a journey to be proud of.

Taking the reader by the hand, The IVF Journal manages every stage of in-vitro fertilization, from finding the right doctor for readers' needs, to managing preparatory care and insemination, to providing simple sheets to help manage the financial aspects. Rather than bombard readers with technical jargon and complicated advice, The IVF Journal is designed to be accessible to all readers during this important time in their lives.
